As denturists, can you explain the following actions that affect 100% of the people you serve?

- the importance of the digestive processes
- where digestion begins
- how digestion begins
- closing pressures v grinding pressures
- what enzymatic action is
- how dentures affect the digestive system
- how the digestive system affects the success of your treatment

If you do not know these answers, here is an opportunity to learn and to enhance the quality of your practice.

These and other areas of oral health care will be discussed as well as the advancement of dentistry into a new realm of practitioner; a practitioner who is educated in a substantial new arena; homeopathy. Come listen, learn, and get your continuing education hours.
